Nautical Charts Available on Web

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sailors who want to update their nautical charts can now do it via the Internet. The National Ocean Service said Thursday that mariners can arrange to get weekly updates delivered by e-mail. The service is a joint effort between the Ocean Service and Maptech Inc., the company that handles marketing for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's electronic charts.

Maptech's latest edition raster charts, or charts for use on a computer, are a commercial product produced under a cooperative research and development agreement with NOAA. The optional update package which will provide small patch files delivered by e-mail. Purchasers can have the patches automatically applied to screen versions of the charts, or they may be used to create new chart editions on their computer hard drive. Currently the digital computer charts outsell paper charts two-to-one, the agency said.

In the past, charts were updated when there were 50 or so changes to be made. With the new system updates can occur every week, including notices from the U.S. Coast Guard, NOAA's Critical Correction Database, the National Imagery and Mapping Agency and the Canadian Hydrographic Service.

SEA LIONS

California Sea Lions can be found sun bathing, barking and up to their old antics at the marina's K-dock. They "hailed out" on PIER 39's K-Dock shortly after the 1989 Loma Prieta earthquake. The boisterous barking pinnipeds started arriving in droves, taking over the docks in January 1990. And visitors to Pier 39 have enjoyed their antics ever since.
